A word of warning

Griffith's Valuation will bring you to the right townland

However, it is not always accurate about who occupied what field

Local knowledge can help with this

In the current example, Wards occupied Plot 7, not Plot 6 and Kellys occupied Plot 22 not Plot 11.

James (Riveagh) Darcy was a person of such interest and power in Connaught that he was appointed Vice President of that Province in the reign of Elizabeth and was Chief Magistrate of the Town of Galway as his monumental inscription sets forth (V praeses conaciae, praetor Galviae) in the Franciscan Friary of Galway; he died in 1603, leaving seven sons and one daughter viz., Nicholas (whose two sons James and Dominick died childless, the elder of whom a barrister at law settled his large Estate in the Counties of Galway, Mayo, Roscommon and Clan on his first cousin James Darcy of Kiltolla Esq., the son of his youngest uncle Patrick (to be mentioned) Martin (from whom the Darcies of Clunuan in the County of Clare derive) James (ancestor to the families of Ballybocock, Gurteen, Hundswood and Tuam) Anthony (from whom the Darcies

Valuation Office books 1824-1856

The printed volumes of the Primary (or Griffith's) Valuation, the record of Ireland's first comprehensive property tax, have been available online for many years now, and are a crucial part of the genealogical infrastructure for the mid-nineteenth century. But the records which underlie and inform the printed valuation have never been digitised until now, and they contain more information about households and landholding than can be found in the printed version.

There are four distinct kinds of books involved, and our former Director, Frances Magee, who has worked on these records for years, has written descriptive notes on each of them to clarify their functions and the information they contain. Begin with her General Note, and move on to the four descriptions linked below.

Valuation Office House Books

The House Books of the Valuation Office are manuscript books in which information on houses and buildings is recorded. The books include houses and buildings situated in rural areas and in cities, towns and villages. They date between 1833 and the mid-1850s and were made as the other valuation work was carried out, county by county. The National Archives holds all of the House Books relating to the 26 counties of the Republic of Ireland and three books for parishes in County Fermanagh. The other valuation archives relating to the six counties of Northern Ireland are in the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland in Belfast.
